Abstrak

With the changes of the tax collection system from an official assessment system to a self assessment system in 1996, the inspection of the tax obligation of the tax payer become important in order to test the compliance and enforcement of tax regulations. In an effort to support the system and make good taxation procedures in the Great Jakarta, the implimentation of the self assessment system will entrust tax payers to count, calculate, pay and report the amount of tax due according to the taxation regulations.

The statistical variables of this research consists of dependen and independen variables. The random variable is the frequency of tax inspection and the non-free variable is the compliance of the hotel as a tax payer with 4 (four) compliance dimensions being the self assessment system, book keeping, inspection and mass deposit.

The research took place in South Jakarta Suku Dinas Pendapatan. The method used in this reasarch was the survey of 34 samples of hotel tax payer listed in South Jakarta Suku Dinas Pendapatan_ The tools used in this research to compiles the data was a questionnaire given to hotel tax payers with 16 questions. The method of data analysis used to analyse the relationship between the random and order variables is of the corellation of the simple regression linear formula, corellation coeffecience and hipotesis test (t-test) at a significant rate $\alpha = 5\%$.

The results of this research shows that correlations using simple linear regression analysis, corellation co-efficiency and t-tests, describe that inspection has given a positive influence to the compliance of hotel tax payers in implementing tax regulation of self assesment system, book keeping, inspection and mass deposit. Based on this research and to improve the compliance of hotel tax payers in implementing the tax regulations, it is recommend to South Jakarta Suku Dinas Pendapatan to improve the frequency of inspection especially to tax payers who have not been inspected before and increase the number of inspectors and improve the quality of the tax inspector in order to maximize their capabilities.
