Abstrak

Local autonomy is able to be viewed as a bright policy, if we can appreciate the geographical and demographical situation within Indonesia. The regional autonomy as a policy is made to be the media on minimizing conflict and tense between central government to local government should not be seen in a win or lose term, but implementation on democracy and welfare for nation. From those aspects people in regional area will be positioned as an active and participative part of the nation, which on the same time the relation between central - local government is more to partnership - interdependency. Conflicts of power arises as an excess of miscommunication, besides the differences on necessity between central and regional, although the sizes of the occurring conflicts are not similar from time to time. That situation can be happened due to decentralization implementation affected by situation, condition, paradigm, also the approach on the implementation system held by the local government.
