Abstrak

In civic politics, many things have to be noted, but in condition that concern to national political leaders and government, have to be the objectives of the political leaders action and to get greater attention, and at the same time, they are required to practice, constanly, the pattern ethical life. This has to be done, so that people feel not far from their leaders. Officials and local Politicians who obey the norms of the code of conduct should place their duties as government officials over their own interests, carrier and status. Mean while, poltical communication has to be conducted by officials and local politicians in order to interlace communication with local people, both in the context to maintain relationship, namely, to channel the aspirations and political interest of the people as political inputs and also to channel the output of political system, and to carry out government functions. This paper has the attention to discuss on the existence of DPRD through two perspectives: first, perspective of political/government ethics implementation and perspective of political communication.
