The focus of this study is the patriotic attitude of the characters in the three short stories of Guy de Maupassant. Using the syntagmatic and paradigmatic analysis, that patriotic attitude could be observed based on the story events, characters description, and by the places and times as well. The result of this study shows that the characters, whether the main characters or the secondary characters in Boule de Suif, Mademoiselle Fifi, and Le lit 29 are patriotic. Those characters represent the patriotic ideas of Maupassant during the Franco-Prussian war.
