

Endogenous endotoxemia in patients with liver cirrhosis

Andri Sanityoso Sulaiman, author

Deskripsi Lengkap: <https://lib.ui.ac.id/detail?id=20296612&lokasi=lokal>

Abstrak

Since the limulus test, a method for the evaluation of endotoxin levels using extract from horseshoe crabs (Limulus, spp), was developed in the year 1969 by Levin and Bang, there have been reports on endotoxin from portal blood without negative gram bacterial infection, a condition known as endogenous endotoxemia.