ABSTRACT

This research aims to examine the impact of Corporate Governance Perception Index, Auditor Tenure, Auditor Size To Earnings Quality of Listed Companies in Corporate Governance Perception Index (CGPI) conducted by The Indonesian Institute for Corporate Governance (IICG) 2008-2012 period. Earnings quality in this research measured by discretionary accruals developed by Kohtari et al (2005) which is adopted by Jiang et al (2008) as the proxy of earnings quality. The results show that Corporate Governance Perception Index tends to impact positively and significantly on earnings quality. However, Auditor Tenure and Auditor Size do not have significant impact on earnings quality of companies which listed in the Corporate Governance Perception Index (2008-2012 Period).
