

Tinjauan spionase sebagai alat untuk mendukung keamanan dan kerjasama antarnegara dalam memberantas kejahatan transnasional = Overview of espionage as a tool to support security and intergovernmental cooperation in eradicate transnastional crime

Stephanie Rebecca Magdalena R Purba, author

Deskripsi Lengkap: <https://lib.ui.ac.id/detail?id=20389194&lokasi=lokal>

Abstrak

[ABSTRAK]

Hukum internasional tidak mengatur sejauh mana batasan norma terhadap kegiatan intelijen yang dapat dilakukan dalam hubungan antar negara. Tidak adanya pengaturan spionase di masa damai dalam hukum internasional, dimaksudkan untuk menjaga stabilitas politik dan kerjasama dalam hubungan antarnegara. Spionase merupakan kebutuhan bagi pertahanan negara untuk membela diri dari bahaya sekecil apapun yang mungkin datang. Penelitian ini menyarankan agar Pemerintah Indonesia memperkuat kemampuan intelijennya untuk mendukung negara dalam setiap kerjasama internasional dan pemberantasan kejahatan transnasional.

<hr>

ABSTRACT

International law does not regulate the norm limit the extent to which intelligence activities to do in the relations between states. This lack of regulation of espionage in peacetime international law, intended to maintain political stability and cooperation in the relations between states. Espionage is a necessity for national defense to defend themselves from the slightest danger that might come up. This study recommends that the Government of Indonesia to strengthen its intelligence capabilities to support the country in any international cooperation and combating transnational crime.; International law does not regulate the norm limit the extent to which intelligence activities to do in the relations between states. This lack of regulation of espionage in peacetime international law, intended to maintain political stability and cooperation in the relations between states. Espionage is a necessity for national defense to defend themselves from the slightest danger that might come up. This study recommends that the Government of Indonesia to strengthen its intelligence capabilities to support the country in any international cooperation and combating transnational crime., International law does not regulate the norm limit the extent to which intelligence activities to do in the relations between states. This lack of regulation of espionage in peacetime international law, intended to maintain political stability and cooperation in the relations between states. Espionage is a necessity for national defense to defend themselves from the slightest danger that might come up. This study recommends that the Government of Indonesia to strengthen its intelligence capabilities to support the country in any international cooperation and combating transnational crime.]