

period of 2010-2014. This paper employs panel regression technique with random effect model and pooled least squares model. Research's finding suggests that bank risk and performance influenced interbank borrowing interest rate and overhead cost affects bank's stock return. This research aims to investigate the impact of bank risk and performance on the rate of change in interbank borrowing, interbank borrowing interest rate, and stock return. Research sample includes 6 banks from LQ45 index for the quarterly period of 2010-2014. This paper employs panel regression technique with random effect model and pooled least squares model. Research's finding suggests that bank risk and performance influenced interbank borrowing interest rate and overhead cost affects bank's stock return. This research aims to investigate the impact of bank risk and performance on the rate of change in interbank borrowing, interbank borrowing interest rate, and stock return. Research sample includes 6 banks from LQ45 index for the quarterly period of 2010-2014. This paper employs panel regression technique with random effect model and pooled least squares model. Research's finding suggests that bank risk and performance influenced interbank borrowing interest rate and overhead cost affects bank's stock return.]