Abstrak

This is about an ethics on care of nature and the surrounding environment. Man may have good or bad actions when they are challenged to appreciate, care, love, and watch on nature and its surrounding. Nature is understood ontologically, epistemologically, and axiologically. The three philosophical aspects, directly or indirectly, give a contribution to man in order to appreciate nature and its organisms. Learning about Deep Ecology needs to be developed and socialized through education where both human and nature rights may walk harmoniously.
