Abstrak

Reformation movement at the end of the 20th century changed some rules of the 1945 constitution. That movement among others changed state organs having authorities to make law. At first president used to be a state organ of law maker with consent of Parliament (Article 5 paragraph 1 of the former 1945 constitution. By that change it was determined that Parliament is that state organ of law maker (Article 20 paragraph 1 of the new 1945 constitution). But in the laws determined, since after the change of the 1945 constitution up to now, it was stated by formulating that President is the organ of law maker. Dealing with that disharmony, this article tends to discuss about forms of law that should prevail at the era of the enforcement of the reformed 19445.
