Abstrak

The problem of loan is unbearable as it closely related to the dynamics of living and also possibility to sign a contract which is guaranteed by the law. Ironically, this situation is often manipulated by those who have capability to make the weak even weaker. This research aims to figure out the knowledge and understanding the consequences of loan, and the attitude of the fish pond fisherman toward procedure of loan and ability to pay. The data show that the fish pond fisherman do not know the negative effects toward the action, especially toward the long term dependency, i.e. financial losing and the loss of independency as the owner. In addition, the action is also considered as an aid, but in the long run it can deceive them.
