Abstrak

The usage of phronesis as a term in the field of medicine aims at describing doctors as men of virtue. It is an obligation that they should put it into practice in their profession. In this article, I will present the idea standing behind the study and practice of medicine, that is, doctors or the candidates should have a holistic knowledge. One of those elements is that the field of medicine has a relation with other disciplines that work on the same material object, namely human beings. Other is that human beings are not machines -- which are unorganic, mindless and inactive. Avoiding mistreating course, assist doctors to be the men of virtue.
