Whatever your definition of success, you'll achieve it only when you apply four key habits to your life and work - not once in a while, or just "when the going gets tough," but every single day. Once you master that ability, you'll find that control, freedom of choice, and spectacular success are yours. "Personal Brilliance" helps you maximize your awareness, curiosity, focus, and initiative. These four traits we all have can be the catalysts for achieving your best.
