ABSTRACT

The study was conducted to see the correlation between change leadership and affective commitment to change. This study used applied research studies with 38 Recruitment Consultants as participants. The study used change leadership measurement Liu, 2010 with coefficient alpha score 0.95 and affective commitment to change measurement Herscovitch Meyer, 2002 with coefficient alpha score 0.90. The Pearson correlation technique was used to determine the relationship between two variables. The results showed a significant and positive relationship between change leadership and affective commitment to change $r 0.53, p 0.05, significant$. It showed that with increasing change leadership behavior of Team Leader, affective commitment to change in Recruitment Consultant will increase. An intervention program of change leadership training to Team Leader to increase affective commitment to change of Recruitment Consultant is designed following the research result.
