Abstrak

Children is in fact not different than mature people in terms of their rights to determine what kind of environment is best for them due to their need for healthy living space. However, mature people viz-a-viz city council seem neglect that and pretend as if they know exactly what children think as best to them. The writer here exposes some evidences as well as arguments that even children should be given access in determining what kind of environment, facilities and others they may require in the city setting.
