Abstrak

Globalization is predicted to eliminate boundaries between countries and nations in the world and it will create a global village. Globalization developed new trends such as the hegemony of transnational companies, the culture of modernity which are open to any new ideas and thoughts, and political tensions between nations due to the economic gaps.

Our society should neither be skeptic nor fully supportive of globalization as it has its winners and losers. As a response to globalization since globalization, our society should strengthen normative, functional and coercive national integrity. The idea of "think globally and act locally" should be reviewed. We will not be able to respond to globalization if we always maintain institutional and intellectual frameworks developed by globalization. We must have development which is based on our values. This is a development based on the whole aspects of society and there must be structural support for the following values of self-sufficiency, national consensus, and anti-corrupt practices.
