Title : The analysis of marketing appeals, accountability, and self awareness effect in influencing donation intention (a marketing study of charitable organization).

The marketing activities of nonprofit organization in Indonesia have not fully represented the effective ways in developing fund-raising. General objective of this research is to examine the marketing appeals (self & other benefit appeal) effect in influencing donation intention in condition of accountability (public & private) and public self-awareness (high & low). This research used an experimental research design with Statistic Descriptive Analysis through 158 undergraduate student of MMUI as a participant. This experimental research consist of 2 studies (8 cell), this would require: 2x2 (4cell) of studi 1 (public & private accountability) and 2x2 (4cell) of studi 2 (high & low self awareness). The findings are suggesting that marketers should modify the marketing message appeal across conditions to match the appeal type of nonprofit organization.
