

Pengembangan Sistem E-Procurement (Studi Kasus: PT Telkom Indonesia, unit genera support- STO Gambir

Nia Kumaladewi

Deskripsi Lengkap: <https://lib.ui.ac.id/detail?id=20462202&lokasi=lokal>

Abstrak

PT Telekomunikasi Indonesia, Tbk. (TELKOM) is a telocommunication company and the information provider (Infocomm). With the technology continues to evolve, the role of inormation systems in the various divisions to support the modernization of the company due to synergize information system media, and information technology with busines processes. Especially in the procurement of goods and services with the inteergration of such information may facilitate each division to cooperate with and support each ather maximum to achieve company goals. The purpose of this research into help develop eprocurement systems PT Telkom to support the needs of enterprise business process. The development of eprocurement system is using SDLC (System Development Life Cycle) with the waterfall model. The results of this study are e-Pocurement system that has been developed to supooort teh needs of corparate business process in helping to maximize the logistics funtional division kinerja. Sistem e-Pocurement fnctional logistics that can healp in making a decision for the porcurement of goods and services by PT Telkom Indonesia. Based on test results, it can be concluded that the information system has been running as the are designed.